So Long and Farewell, (sort of)

This is the last issue of MESSAGES until next September, when Joyce Spencer will be taking over as Editor and I will be the new Historian. I have enjoyed being the Editor and have met many incredible women in the process. Three of these women deserve extra special kudos for going over my drafts and spotting errors and omissions: Joyce Spencer and Kathleen Salzberg. Thanks also to Carol Etges for putting in the links.

Thanks, Everyone! It's been a grand ride!

The Honors Reception

Tuesday, May 12, 2015

3:00 – 5:00 p.m.

Koenig Alumni Center

Meet the recipient of the Margaret Willard Award

We are extremely proud to announce that Professor Dayna Bowen Matthew, nominated by our beloved Ellie Buchsbaum prior to her passing, is the recipient of the UWC 2015 Margaret Willard Award.

Professor Matthew will return to Boulder from Washington, D.C. to accept the award. She is currently a 2015-2016 Robert Wood Johnson Health Policy Fellow, serving as Senior Advisor to the Director, Office of Civil Rights for the Environmental Protection Agency. She will also be the recipient of the CU Law School - 2015 Clifford Calhoun Faculty Award for Public Service.

Professor Matthew is a remarkable woman, who surpasses all the requirements to receive the prestigious MWA.

She joined the University of Colorado faculty in 2003 as an Associate Professor, and was promoted to Full Professor in 2005. She holds a joint faculty appointment at the Colorado School of Public Health and is a member of the University of Colorado's Center for Bioethics and Humanities faculty. She teaches Constitutional Law, Civil Procedure, Evidence, and a variety of health law classes.

In 2004, Professor Matthew became the Law School's Associate Dean of Academic Affairs and served in that office until she became the Law School's Vice Dean from 2010-2011. Professor Matthew has also practiced as a civil litigator.

In 2013, she co-founded the Colorado Health Equity Project, a collaboration of the medical and legal profession that has the mission of removing barriers to good health for low income individuals by providing legal representation, research, and policy advocacy.

Professor Matthew has published numerous articles on health and anti-trust law. Her book, Just Medicine: A Cure for Racial Inequality in Health Care is scheduled for release by NYU Press in September 2015.

She received an A.B. in Economics from Harvard-Radcliffe College and a J.D. from the University of Virginia School of Law. She is married to Thomas Matthew, M.D., and has three children. She has accompanied Dr. Matthew to Rwanda as a Fulbright Specialist, and as part of "Team Heart," where she advises on legal matters.

Who says women can't have it all?

President's Message

Another excellent year of UWC activities is coming to a close. Our events were all very well attended this year, some near capacity.

I hope you all enjoyed our wonderful lecture luncheon speakers. Patty Ludke has agreed to continue as our Program Chair for the 2015-16 year (Thank you Patty)! We look forward to another super series of speakers for 2015-16.

This year's speakers were:

Peter McGraw

Nila Brummond

Patty Limerick

Clay Evans

We also had a special social event at the Fiske Planetarium in October, with many "Significant Others" attending. The media show in the planetarium, hosted by Doug Duncan, Director of the Fiske, was "out of this world" due to the new multimillion dollar renovation of that facility. If you have not seen one of the Fiske shows, it is well worth your time to do so. You can check out the offerings online at <http://fiske.colorado.edu/>.

One of our accomplishments this year is that we have converted to an electronic directory and an electronic repository of our annual reports and other important documents. We thank all for realizing this is a convenient, 21st century, economic method of doing business. Thank you Diana King, for this transition.

The number of Interest Groups has expanded this year to 26 groups (see <http://boulderuwc.org/index.php/interest-groups/>).

If you missed any of our news, please know that you can go to <http://boulderuwc.org/> Look under the MESSAGES tab to review our present and past newsletters.

Many thanks to our fabulous UWC Board members and committees for our smooth-sailing year, and to all the UWC members who donated this year to our Scholarship program. It has been a pleasure to serve as the president for this community of wonderful women.

Have a wonderful summer. We hope you will join us again in the fall for another great year.

Best,

Joyce J. Spencer
UWC President 2014-2015

Congratulations to the UWC 2015 Scholarship Winners!

Thanks to the generous donations of UWC members directly to UWC's scholarships and to UWC's Endowment Fund, we are able to award a total of $20,000 to the five scholarship recipients for the 2015-16 academic year. Since 1982, when we gave $600 to each of two winners, UWC has awarded more than $200,000 to deserving scholars.

Thank you UWC Scholarship Committee (Kathy Randall, Chair; Janet Evans, Pat Hagerty, Becky Palmer, and Yael Sears, members) who selected the following students as recipients of UWC Scholarships for 2015-16.

From left:
Brandon Heald, Paola Etter, Leslie Dong, Celeste Smitz,
Corwin Sheahan

Leslie Dong: After working to obtain support from four academic departments at CU, and acquiring $20,000 in Chinese sponsorships, Leslie founded the non-profit Global Student Initiative (GSI) and this past fall launched her pilot program with student exchanges between CU Boulder and various top universities in China. She developed a program whereby CU students could actively apply their academic knowledge in real life while developing valuable leadership and practical skills. Leslie is majoring in International Affairs and Asian Studies and has added a minor in Business Administration. Upon graduation she hopes to expand GSI into a social business that will facilitate exchanges between American universities and various other universities all over the world.

Paola Nabila Etter: Paola immigrated to the United States from Guatemala at the age of nine and, after one year, became the family translator. She encountered a roadblock that prevented her from attending college upon graduating from high school, but this did not stop her from envisioning the opportunity for higher education in the future. After several years of work and Community College classes, Paola was able to enter CU at age 24. The joy in her parents' faces when she told them this, Paola says, "is a beautifully painted portrait in my heart." Paola is majoring in Business Management and hopes to create a positive impact that will lead her family and her community to a brighter future and support the fight for education in a world where many women still don't have this fundamental right.

Brandon Michael Heald: Brandon credits three meaningful experiences with shaping his professional and personal goals. First, coming out to his friends and family as a gay man gave him the courage to become whatever he wanted to become. His second experience was enrolling at Pikes Peak Community College, where he rediscovered his passion for architecture. As a result of the first two events, Brandon decided to enter CU to pursue a degree in Environmental Design with plans to obtain a Master's degree in Architecture at UC Denver. Brandon is an activist in the community, working with groups focused on LGBTQIA+ advocacy. Through his actions, Brandon is determined to make the lives of others as rich as his own.

Corwin Andrew Sheahan: After dropping out of college after his first year, Corwin spent several years working and learning about himself and about life. This developed into a burning desire to return to college and succeed. Corwin started at Front Range Community College, where he worked hard at learning not only his subject matter, but how to study and how to be successful. He graduated from Front Range with a 4.0 GPA. In the fall of 2014 he was accepted into CU's Aerospace Engineering program and completed his first semester with a 3.94 GPA. Corwin believes the most valuable thing he has learned is that a goal is achieved through the constant diligence one assigns to his or her daily life.

Celeste Brooke Smitz: Starting at age 16, when she left her dysfunctional family to begin her own journey, Celeste has worked hard at personal and professional development. Once on her own, Celeste had a place to read and study. As her freedom and knowledge increased, her dreams expanded. She spent more than a decade traveling, learning languages, working three jobs at a time and always studying something. Eventually she realized she might have a chance at a college degree. Celeste is majoring in Linguistics and will earn her BA in May of 2016. Celeste has great empathy, which has fueled her to find ways to contribute, improve, help and educate. She succeeds in leaving each situation better than when she found it.

CU Scholarship Luncheon

On April 12 Karon Johnson and Joyce Spencer attended the CU Scholarship luncheon in the Glenn Miller Ballroom. The event was to recognize scholarship donors such as the University Women's Club and the scholarship recipients.

Karon and Joyce were delighted to have one of our 2014-15 awardees, Samantha Moyer, sit at their table. Samantha is a dual major in Physics and Music and is most appreciative to have received our award.

Thank you for the Donations

Thank you, thank you, thank you!

Below is a list of the folks who donated more than the base $10 donation for the 2015 Scholarship.

Welcome to Our New Members

We are delighted to have six new members. Be sure to welcome them when you see them. They are Julianne Cassady, Kim Ezzell, Renata Frenzen, Lois Kraft, Diana Maiden, and Nancy Lee Miller.

DR. BRUCE JAKOSKY and the MAVEN MISSION

Bruce Jakosky, a CU Professor of Geological Sciences and the Faculty Research Associate for the Laboratory for Atmospheric and Space Physics (LASP), is the principal investigator for the Mars Atmosphere and Volatile Evolution mission (MAVEN), which gives scientists insight into the history of Mars' atmosphere and climate, liquid water, and planetary habitability.

MAVEN is the first mission devoted to understanding the Martian upper atmosphere.

The goal of MAVEN is to determine the role that loss of atmospheric gas to space played in changing the Martian climate through time. Where did the atmosphere – and the water – go?

Is there potential for life on Mars? What are the philosophical and societal issues in astrobiology?

The MAVEN, launched on November 18, 2013, arrived in the orbit of Mars on September 21, 2014. What have we learned since? What do we hope to learn in the future?

Click here for “Maven in the News” articles.

GUESTS ARE WELCOME (as always) to attend this very exciting lecture!

In Memoriam

Esther R. Magathan, an active member of the UWC, passed away on April 3, 2015. Esther was the UWC President in 2008-09, and the winner of the President's Award both in 2005-06 and again in 2007-08. She was a member of the UWC Board for many years.

Esther graduated from Queen's University in Ontario, from which she received several Alumni awards. She authored or co-authored many books and articles on Paleontology, such as:

- Paleozoic Paleogeography of the West-Central United States: Rocky Mountain Paleogeography Symposium
- Field Guide Book : Big Snowy Mountain Region, Central Montana
- New Wave Carbonate Research: What Paleontologists Can Learn from It: A Status Report from Cancun, Mexico

She was a founding co-editor (1986) of SEPM (Society for Sedimentary Geology)'s journal PALAIOS. As a member of the UWC community, as well as the Geological Society of America, Esther will be missed by many.

Please Note

If you know of any UWC member who is seriously ill or has died, please contact Mollie Sue Morton at 303-494-5486 or Mollie.Morton@Colorado.EDU. It is also possible for you to make a donation to the UWC in memory of a loved one. See page 13.

Tell Me More...

About Andrew Reynolds Margolin

by Kathy Randall

Andrew Reynolds Margolin received a UWC Scholarship for the 2011-12 academic year and was the UWC's first male recipient. Andrew was making his mark as an oceanographic scientist even before he completed his undergraduate studies. He was a member of the Fox-Kemper and Ocean Biogeochemistry Research Groups at CU and was awarded a Colorado Science Scholarship for his research contributions. Before his senior year at CU he spent the summer in research on an icebreaker in the Drake Passage.

In the fall of 2012, Andrew began graduate school at University of Miami's Rosenstiel School of Marine and Atmospheric Science where he is pursuing a PhD in Marine and Atmospheric Chemistry in the Department of Ocean Sciences.

His research focuses on dissolved organic carbon (DOC) in seawater, as well as temperature, salinity, oxygen, and nutrient concentrations. CO₂ concentrations in the atmosphere are rising, and CO₂ is a greenhouse gas that traps outgoing longwave radiation, causing the earth to warm. As Andrew explains, in order to understand CO₂ in the atmosphere and climate change, we have to understand how DOC interacts with CO₂ in the ocean. Andrew studies the Black Sea, the Gulf of Mexico, and the Caribbean. These are "marginal seas," adjacent to open oceans but partially enclosed by islands, archipelagos, or peninsulas. See more about Andrew's research here: <http://rsmas.miami.edu/personal/amargolin/research.html>.

Last year Andrew was awarded the National Science Foundation Graduate Research Fellowship, which provides him with three years of academic/research support and a generous stipend. His funded proposal is entitled "Hydrocarbon Seeps: BROADSCALE Impacts on Carbon Dynamics of the Deep Gulf of Mexico." The project will improve our understanding of seep hydrocarbons in the deep Gulf of Mexico, a system that is environmentally and economically important to the USA but one that is surprisingly poorly known. As part of the project, Andrew will give presentations on the importance of the ocean, science, and the pursuit of a fulfilling career to K-12 schools in his hometown of Iowa City, IA, where exposure to oceanography is limited. There he is a role model demonstrating where hard work and determination can lead.

In the course of his studies outside of his dissertation marginal seas, Andrew has traveled via New Zealand to the Ross Sea in Antarctica, to Punta Arenas, Chile, and to the Gulf of Alaska. See wonderful photos of his cruises here: <http://rsmas.miami.edu/personal/amargolin/photos.html>. In August Andrew will embark on a cruise that begins and ends in Dutch Harbor, Alaska (the port town in Deadliest Catch, located in the Aleutian Islands). That cruise will go through the Bering Sea, and up through the Arctic Ocean to the North Pole and back.

When he is not occupied with his scientific study and research, Andrew enjoys playing soccer, exploring new areas of Miami and spending leisure time with professors, fellow grad students, and friends. He reports that he is very proud of the time he spent in Colorado at CU and also very proud about receiving the University Women's Club Scholarship

Spotlight on...the UWC Needlecraft Group

The UWC Needlecraft Group has been having a “rip-roaring” good time this year. Below are some photos.

Standing are Karon Johnson and Jana Murphy. Seated are Ginnie Ross, Kathy Randall and Mary Anna Dunn.

Book Recommendations from UWC Book Clubs

Looking for a good book? Four of the five UWC Book Groups take the summer off, but we all keep reading. Following are favorite book suggestions from those read this past year by our book groups. The abridged quoted summaries are all taken from www.goodreads.com. Other summaries and comments are from group members. Enjoy!

FICTION

American Pastoral by Philip Roth (423 pages) – "...a novel of unqualified greatness that is an elegy for all the twentieth century's promises of prosperity, civic order, and domestic bliss ... Compulsively readable, propelled by sorrow, rage, and a deep compassion for its characters, this is Roth's masterpiece."

Bring Up the Bodies by Hilary Mantel (407 pages) – Part 2 of the Thomas Cromwell trilogy that started with Wolf Hall, this historical novel "follows the dramatic trial of the queen and her suitors for adultery and treason."

Defending Jacob by William Landay (421 pages) – A man's "son is charged with the murder of a fellow student. [This is a] consummate novel of an embattled family in crisis... that is also a spellbinding tale of guilt, betrayal, and the terrifying speed at which our lives can spin out of control."

Garden of Evening Mist by Tan Twan Eng (350 pages) – Set in Malaya during the years prior to and during WWII, written many years later. Fabulous writing, in-depth characters and interesting setting.

Middlemarch by George Eliot (800+ pages depending on edition) – It's a long and in-depth look at the personalities and frailties of the citizens of the town of Middlemarch, a microcosm of many other towns.

Mr. Penumbra's 24-Hour Bookstore by Robin Sloan (288 pages) – An old school mystery set in tech-loving, modern day San Francisco. A former web designer lands a job at a mysterious bookstore with few patrons and fewer purchases.

A Tale for the Time Being by Ruth Ozeki (422 pages) – A novelist living on a remote island discovers a collection of artifacts washed ashore in a Hello Kitty lunchbox and is pulled into the life story of Nao, a lonely 16 year old girl in Tokyo.

"Ward No. 6" by Anton Chekhov found in Ward No. 6 and Other Stories (400 pages) – Ward No. 6 is located in a mental asylum in Russia where people were sent often unjustly. It is particularly timely in light of reports of the warehousing of the mentally ill and others unable to care for themselves.

The Wife, the Maid and the Mistress by Ariel Lawhon (304 pages) – A mystery based on the real life disappearance of Judge Joseph Crater in 1930. Not all group readers enjoyed this "genre" mystery book, but for many it was a quick, fun read.

The Woman Upstairs by Claire Messud (272 pages) – A psychological suspense story of a woman awakened, transformed, and betrayed by passion and a desire for a world beyond her own.

NON-FICTION

Behind the Beautiful Forevers: Life, Death, and Hope in a Mumbai Undercity by Katherine Boo (256 pages) – Difficult true stories of human condition that enlighten us to a culture that strives to survive and succeed as it is able.

Catherine the Great: Portrait of a Woman by Robert K. Massie (642 pages) – A historical biography that is very long, but a fascinating read with a lot of history.

Lawrence in Arabia: War, Deceit, Imperial Folly and the Making of the Modern Middle East by Scott Anderson (577 pages) – "A thrilling and revelatory narrative of one of the most epic and consequential periods in 20th century history."

The Monuments Men: Allied Heroes, Nazi Thieves, and the Greatest Treasure Hunt in History by Robert M Edsel and Bret Witter (473 pages) – Story of the special force of American and British art professionals who risked their lives to prevent the destruction of thousands of years of culture.

My Beloved World by Sonia Sotomayor (302 pages) – "An instant American icon - the first Hispanic on the U.S. Supreme Court" <http://www.student.nvcc.edu/home/racox2/israelibooksandmovies/books.html> - tells the story of her life before becoming a judge in an inspiring, surprisingly personal memoir."

Shadow Mountain: A Memoir of Wolves, a Woman and the Wild by Renee Askins (336 pages) – Told in powerful, first-person narrative, this is the story of one woman's 15 year fight for the return of wolves to Yellowstone National Park.
