

A column by Gail Collins this summer commemorated the 90th birthday of the 19th Amendment, that wonderful amendment which gave women the right to vote. My first reaction to the birthday was, "The UWC is older than Women's Suffrage!" It turns out while this is true enough for American women in total, it's not so true for Colorado women. We have had the vote for an additional 27 years.

In 1893, Colorado became the first state to approve women's suffrage in a popular election. Wyoming's territorial charter made it the first state to allow women to vote, but Colorado was the first state where the men voted to give women the right to vote. The Colorado Non-Partisan Equal Suffrage Association, a coalition of women's organizations, churches, political parties, charity groups, unions, and farmer's alliances, led by journalists such as Caroline Nichols Churchill, Ellis Meredith, and activist Elizabeth Ensley, spread the rallying cry, "Let the women vote! They can't do any worse than the men have!" They argued that women's votes might address the problems of inadequate schools, squalid housing conditions, unhealthy working conditions and dirty politics. When the women's suffrage referendum passed, The Queen Bee, Denver's first women's-rights newspaper proclaimed, "Western Women Wild with Joy over the Victory of Suffrage in Colorado." The next year Colorado elected the first three female state legislators in U.S. History.

None of this came easy. The right to vote was granted to Colorado women only after 25 years of effort and two failed attempts. Finally, under the promotion of Governor Davis H. Waite, a long time civic reformer, diverse groups set aside their differences to win the vote for women.

To gain passage of the 19th Amendment, suffragists worked for 70 years staging referendum campaigns, lobbying legislators and state party leaders, appealing to 30 different presidential party campaigns to include suffrage planks in party platforms, and petitioning 19 successive congresses. When the Amendment was finally passed, ratification momentum stalled just one state shy of success. Tennessee was the only state yet to ratify that remained in session. The Amendment, with an expected one vote margin of victory seemed doomed when a supporter changed his mind. To the rescue came Harry Burn, at 24 the youngest representative,

President's

who changed his vote. He had received a letter from his mother telling him to "be a good boy" and help Mrs. Catt [Carrie Chapman Catt, suffragist]. He said, "I know that a mother's advice is always the safest for a boy to follow."

Women and their male supporters worked very long and hard for this right to suffrage. Off-year elections with no presidential contests traditionally result in a lower voter turnout. Let's do our part, and honor the memories of Carrie Chapman Catt, Susan B. Anthony, Caroline Nichols Churchill, Ellis Meredith, and Elizabeth Ensley and be sure to cast our ballots.

For those who have moved recently, Monday October 4 is the last day to register to vote. Get information about registration here: <http://www.bouldercounty.org/clerk/elections/index.htm>.

Pat Craig, Executive Director of the Wild Animal Sanctuary in Keenesburg, Colorado, will describe how Colorado has come to have the largest population of rescued lions, tigers, and bears in the world.

The Wild Animal Sanctuary in Keenesburg, Colorado represents a true labor of love. For over 30 years, Pat Craig has rescued and provided a home for captive exotic and endangered large carnivores. His efforts have been in response to a massive social problem, the captive wildlife crisis. In his lecture, TWAS Executive Director Pat Craig will describe the impact of this problem on society, the three aspects of the facility's mission, and how Pat and TWAS have become world renowned.

Pat Craig, a native of Boulder, Colorado, began saving captive wildlife as a 19-year old college student. From his family's farm, he pursued his vision with his own funds and has become a leading expert in captive large carnivore behavior and sanctuary development. He works successfully with the USDA, the U.S., Mexican, and Canadian wildlife agencies, and has received recognition from many sources including the American Veterinary Association and the American Humane Association. Pat and his animals have been featured on National Geographic Channel, 60 Minutes News, Animal Planet, and major documentaries covering the captive wildlife crisis.

Spotlight on ... the Garden Group

I began to garden when we moved to Boulder and the UWC Garden Group got me started with gardening in Colorado. It was a very active group with many members. Our activities included visits to area botanical gardens, garden tours of home gardens in Boulders, visits to local plant nurseries, and talks and demonstrations by gardening gurus. A pretty good format, I would say!

We have had a few years of lagging participation but are now back strongly, with a full roster of meetings this past summer, all well-attended and enjoyed. We have returned to our original format, with a garden-related activity followed by a pot-luck lunch at the home of one of our members or in an area restaurant. This social time builds friendships, which gardeners always enjoy.

In the coming year we are planning to have talks by gardening experts in fall and early spring, with the winter months of December, January and February as a hiatus with no programs to allow us to dream about and plan our summer gardens. And summer will be our busy time, with trips planned to the Betty Ford Alpine Garden in Vail and the Lavender Farm. I hope members will open their gardens to us again, as Ann Garland, Connie Farnbach and Gail Gray did this summer.

Our meetings are scheduled for the first Wednesday of the month. In October, we will meet at the home of Liz Schmidt, 8678 Niwot Rd., in Niwot, at 11am for a discussion of fall planting of trees and perennials. I am arranging a presentation by a gardening professional and will inform members of the group via email once our speaker is confirmed. So do remember to sign up at the Membership Coffee, or contact me, Jyotsna Raj ([jyotsna.raj@colorado.edu](mailto: jyotsna.raj@colorado.edu); 303-447-8831) or the co-chair Virginia Donegan ([ginnydon222yahoo.com](mailto: ginnydon222yahoo.com); 303-635-6685).

Another Opportunity to Help

We are looking for UWC business women to sponsor the publication of our annual Handbook and Membership Directory through a donation. Donors will receive the benefit of an advertising option as follows:

- ♥ For a donation of $100, your business card will be displayed on half a page in the Directory.
- ♥ For a donation of $50, a two line identification of your business will be displayed in the Directory.

This fund-raising effort is an excellent way to increase your visibility within the UWC membership and increase our scholarship fund at the same time.

Please send a copy of your business card or your business information and a check made out to the University Women's Club to GeorgieAnne Campbell at 3220 Lafayette Drive, Boulder, CO 80305-7115 (303-499-2798; [rpcampbell@att.net](mailto: rpcampbell@att.net)). Please call or email GeorgieAnne that a check is in the mail so she can watch for it. She will confirm the receipt with a notification by email.

computer tips & tricks

Having trouble printing your emailed MESSAGES? Remember, if you don't want to print the entire newsletter, or don't want to print it in color, you can make choices when your printer window comes up on your screen.

Start here: Go to "File" > "Print". To print only part of the document, under "Print Range", look for the choice "Pages". Select that choice and enter a number, for example, enter 8 if you only want to print the Membership Form. Or enter single page numbers separated by commas, for example, 2,6,8 if you want to only print the current Lecture Luncheon, Interest Groups, and Membership Form.

To print in black and white, click on "Properties" and look for "Color". In the color window, you will see "Print in grayscale" or "Print in black and white" as a selection choice. After you make your selection, click "Apply" or "OK" until you get back to the original printer window where you can click "OK" or "Print".

If your printer doesn't work this way, or if this doesn't make sense, we offer technical help, one-on-one. Contact GeorgiAnne Campbell (303-499-2798; campbellgeorgie@yahoo.com) for assistance. She'll be able to help.
